

YOUR FIRST SESSION

Open a conversation

Use an AI assistant you already have access to. If you need an account or app, use the provider's official website or app listing and read its current access, privacy and pricing information.

1. Open	Choose a new conversation. Find the message box.
2. Type	Use the prompt below. No file upload is needed.
3. Send	Read the reply and notice what is useful.
4. Follow up	Ask for a shorter or clearer version.
5. Save	Keep the useful result in your own notes.

COPY THIS

I am new to AI. Help me organise a desk in 10 minutes. Give me five simple steps using things I already have.

Follow up: "Make that three steps. Start with the easiest." Compare the two answers and choose what fits.

BEFORE PAYING

This pack does not include an AI account or subscription. Check the tool's current terms and limits; you do not need specialist paid features to practise basic text prompts.

A REUSABLE PROMPT METHOD

The CLEAR method

CLEAR is this guide's memory aid for giving useful context. Use the parts that help; it is not a special command an AI automatically understands.

C - Context	What is happening?
L - Level	How simple or detailed should it be?
E - Exact task	What do you want done?
A - Audience	Who is the answer for?
R - Result	What should the output look like?

WORKED EXAMPLE

I have a crowded desk [Context]. I am a beginner at organising [Level]. Plan a 15-minute tidy [Exact task] for me before work [Audience]. Give me five numbered steps [Result].

Limits such as budget, time or things to avoid can sit alongside these details. You can leave out anything that does not change the answer.

PRACTISE

Use page 3 of the worksheets to plan a prompt of your own.

VERIFY BEFORE YOU ACT

The CHECK method

C - Confirm	Which important claims need checking?
H - Hunt	Find the original or authoritative source.
E - Examine	Look for gaps, stale dates and suspicious details.
C - Compare	Use independent sources where appropriate.
K - Keep humans responsible	Decide what is safe and useful to act on.

WORKED EXAMPLE

Suppose an assistant says a local venue opens at 9 am on a bank holiday. This is a practice scenario, not a claim about a real venue.

Confirm the claim that matters: that day's opening time. Hunt for the venue's own current opening-hours page. Examine whether it covers the bank holiday. Compare with its recent announcement or contact the venue if the information conflicts.

Keep the decision yours: if the time is still uncertain, do not build an important trip around it.

SOURCES ARE NOT A DECORATION

Open the source. Check the date and wording. Two websites repeating the same claim are not necessarily independent confirmation.
